

WOMEN CONTROL IMMENSE RICHES

America's List Headed by Mrs Mary Harriman.

MRS. HETTY GREEN IS NEXT

Russell Sage's Widow Gives Away Half of Husband's Estate in Philanthropic Work—Miss Helen Gould Also Devotes Fortune to Charitable Projects.

The announcement that the estate of Edward H. Harriman, who died Sept. 9, 1909, amounts to $71,000,000 makes the position of his widow, Mrs. Mary W. Harriman, secure as the richest woman in America. This country probably has the most remarkable list of wealthy women of any land in the world.

In a will containing ninety-nine words Harriman left all his property to his wife. They had reached a thorough understanding as to the management of her estate, and his faith in her good judgment was so thorough that he did not deem it necessary to encumber her with restrictions or conditions.

Since his death she has devoted her time to the mastering of the task. She has been assisted by the services of Charles A. Peabody, president of a large life insurance company. By and by she will give more time to charity.

Hetty Green, M., $5,000,000.

Mrs. Hetty Green got $1,000,000 when her father, Edward Robinson, died forty-five years ago, leaving an estate of $2,000,000. The remaining $800,000 was left in trust to her children. Soon after, aunt, Sylvia Ant Ettington, died and added about $4,000,000 to the trust. She, too, died, and redoubled her fortune. Her daughter, Sylvia, is the wife of Mathew A. Wilkes, a New York cishman. Mrs. Green has preferred for many years to live in a little Hoboken flat because it was cheap.

Mrs. Helen Gould, whose kindly face is an index to her feelings, had the staggering task laid on her of spending $55,000,000 Russell Sage had acquired. She disposed of $25,000,000. She has endowed the Russell Sage foundation, the mission of which is to make the country a better place. She has shifted debts from the public schools and churches, built churches outright, shown civic interest in renovating the governor's room at city hall, equipped industrial schools for girls, given art museums and given to the city shrubs for Central park.

Mrs. Gould got more than $10,000,000 from her husband. She has turned the activities of a naturally restless mind into the channels of philanthropy. In the Spanish war she gave $100,000 for relief work among soldiers and $27,000 for the work of the Women's Relief Association. Naval, armistice and ratification of Y. M. C. A.'s everywhere to be seen.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont received from her husband's estate $5,000,000. One of her large gifts was $100,000 to the Nassau hospital at Mineola, N. Y.

Under the will of her father, Colonel William Goddard, Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin of New York became very wealthy in 1908. She gave away $1,000,000, practically the whole of her father's estate of from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. She was Miss Hope Goddard of Providence and Mr. Iselin's second wife.

Mrs. Emma B. Kennedy, widow of John S. Kennedy of New York, headed New York women on the tax list this year, the value of her estate being estimated at $50,000,000. The figure opposite her name was $6,000,000, while that opposite Mrs. Margaret O. Sage's name was $5,000,000.

Though Mrs. Emma Rogers, widow of H. L. Rogers, apparently has the income from her estate valued at $30,000,000, which is about $100,000 a year, it is known that more than that sum is at her call. She was Mrs. E. Stetson Hart before her marriage to Rogers.

Mrs. Lamont Wealthy

Mrs. David S. Lamont, whose husband was in the War in President Cleveland's second administration, has about $50,000,000.

Mrs. Archibald G. Thompson of Philadelphia, whose first husband was Thomas B. Wanamaker, received at his death $7,000,000 out of an estate of $20,000,000. She was Miss Mary L. Welsh, granddaughter of John Welsh, once United States minister to England.

Mrs. Delta S. Field, widow of Marshall Field of Chicago, who left $58,450,000, received $3,000,000 at her death.

Mrs. Morris K. Jesup received $20,000,000 from the $100,000,000 left by her husband. Since his death she has assisted in managing the estate. Last year she gave $20,000 to Yale to complete the fund for the Morris K. Jesup chair in the forestry school.

BROKE UP THE HABIT.

A Woman Who Found a Simple Remedy for a Big Annoyance.

"How long have you been doing this?" asked one of two children who visited me yesterday?" asked a west side woman of another. The other smiled discreetly.

"They are the children of my niece, and she was making a convenience of me. Of course I love the children, but I could not help but feel that each of them was a victim of impulsion. My niece is an extremely gay young widow, and she does not like to take care of her children. She is fond of shopping, matinées, afternoon tea and that sort of thing, and she has got into a habit of sending the children over to my house for me to take care of whenever she wished to get ahead. I decided it was time to break up the habit, for her own good and that of the children, as well as mine, so I did."

"I suppose that made your niece angry?"

"Oh, no; it couldn't. I never said anything about it. The last time the children came over I spent the afternoon reading the word of God from the Bible, and they didn't seem to be very entertained. Then they never came back. Just how they managed to work it out with their mother I do not know, but I suppose they struck or begged off. Of course she could not object to what I had done, and it proved a very simple solution."—New York Press.

AN ASTOR DEAL.

The Only Time That Old John Jacob Sold Real Estate.

"One of the most intelligent real estate sales of the Astor family ever made," and only one sale is recorded in the entire life of old John Jacob Astor," said Miles F. Watkins, a real estate broker of New York. "In 1830 Astor tore down his house in Broadway, cleared the whole block from Broadway to West 14th street, and built the huge Quincy granite hotel known as the Astor House, which was one of the first notable landmarks in New York and also one of the best paying places of property.

"A few days after it was finished the old gentleman, his eldest son, William, was walking through City Hall park, where the police office was situated, and stopped a moment to admire the building, the finest hotel in America at that time.

"Pop, that's a mighty fine building," said William. "I wish to graciously ask mine."

"So?" answered the father. "Well, Billy, give me $1 and you can have it."

"Out came the dollar—a big silver dollar that is cherished by the family to this day—and within an hour the deed of the property was made out and recorded. This was old Mr. Astor's only sale of real estate in his life."—Washington Herald.

A Solomon-like Decision.

A Rhode Island justice was called upon to determine the ownership of a small farm. After a hearing a finding of fifteen young ones was matched by two hens, a white one and a bronze, and had been running for quite a time over two adjoining farms.

The owner of the white hen declared that those turkeys were his, while the owner of the bronze hen asserted just as positively that they belonged to him. The Justice was puzzled.

At last a witness came forward who swore that he had seen a dog chase the flock; that at the dog's approach the turkeys flew into the trees and the hens had to do the same; but the white hen turned and gave battle to the dog. The Justice thereupon decided that the owner of the white hen was also the rightful owner of the brood of young turkeys.—New York Press.

A Woman's Wit.

The husband of Lydia Childs was an invalid for many years. He was not well off in this world's goods, and much of the support of the family was derived from his wife. Thinking of this and of his wife's many sacrifices for his comfort, Mr. Childs once told her regretfully, "My dear, I wish I were Croesus."

Whereupon Mrs. Childs, with ready wit, replied, "You are Croesus, for you are king of Lydia!"—Los Angeles Times.

Imaginary Pain.

Don't laugh at hysterical people with their imaginary pains, says a physician.

A delusion is relative to the patient. When he has a toothache, he feels pain in the brain, and to believe he has it is to have it. It matters not a whit whether the message is sent by one's toe that some kind friend is treading on or whether it is sent from part of the brain to another.—New York Tribune.

Unmoved.

"I understand your antagonist is calling you every name he can think of?"

"Yes," replied Senator Borghese cheerfully. "But he hasn't much of a vocabulary."—Washington Star.

Changes for Variation.

Recent years have afforded good opportunities for those who wished to vary their agricultural production. Several crops which will prosper in most of our agricultural territory have been selling at good prices and part of the time at high prices. Possible variations that occur are barley, which has often sold higher per pound than any other grain; rye for seed in territory where farmers do not produce much rye and want to sow it for a cover crop or a fertility crop; soy beans, for which the demand has been in excess of the supply; all kinds of grass seeds, which have sold well right along, for several years; flaxseed, the production of which has run behind the country's actual needs in recent years; and perhaps others.

While it may pay most farmers best to stick to their staple crops yet here are chances for some for them to raise other things profitably.

Swallow's Snake.

They carried nine congressional Districts, losing the Tenth to Langley by about 1,000 and in the Eleventh Powers defeated Bertram by nearly 9,000, or about half the usual plurality.

The Democrats won in all the Appellate Judgeship races. In the First Appellate Nunn had no opposition. In the Second Settle Democrat beat Dean, Republican, by 3,500, while Miller triumphed over Bingham in Louisville by about 1,200. Lassing beat Tomlin in the Sixth Appellate by 5,000. The approximated majorities for Congress in the order of the districts in the State are:

Ollie James, Democrat, 1300.
A. O. Stanley, Democrat, 4,000.
R. Y. Thomas, Democrat, 1,324.
Ben Johnson, Democrat, 6331.
Swagar Sherley, Democrat, 3,300.

Fusion.

Hard Winter.

An exchange says that the Indians and the old timers say that the coming winter will be one of the coldest on record. They point to the fact that the fur-bearing animals are growing thicker and longer coats than customary, that muskrats are building their houses larger and higher than is their custom in mild winters, that the bears are starting in to make their dens in the most protected places they can find, and the little chipmunks and gophers are also preparing for a siege. They say these signs never fail.

Democratic Control of House is Ample

Net Gain of Forty-Nine Seats Assured and Sixty-Second Congress Sees Republicans Badly in Minority.

G.O.P. MAKES GAINS OF ONLY SIX SOLONS

THE NEXT CONGRESS

Chicago, Nov. 9—
Democrats elected	221
Republicans elected	157
Socialist elected	1
Missing	12
Total	391
Gain by Democrats	55
Gain by Republicans	6
Net gain for Democrats	49
Necessary to control	116
Present Democratic membership	172
Working majority for Democrats	25
Chicago, Nov. 9—Securing control of the next National House of Representatives by the Democrats was decisive. Returns up to date show that the Democrats have made a gross gain of forty-eight members. This figure was offset by a Republican gain of five members, leaving a net Democratic gain of forty-three new seats.

The next largest increase was Illinois, where the Democrats on the face of the returns made six gains. In Pennsylvania the Democratic gains were five, Ohio four, Missouri two, Maryland two, Maine two, previously elected, and one each in Connecticut, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Oklahoma and Rhode Island.

CHAMP CLARK HAPPY

Bowling Green, Ky., Nov. 9—Champ Clark, minority leader in the House of Representatives, when advised that the Democrats probably would control the next House, expressed his gratification and predicted that the majority would be fifty Democratic members.

"The landslide," said Mr. Clark, "is attributed directly to the tariff and the fight on the rules in the House. The rules split the Republican party, and the tariff bill, coming so soon after, caused dissatisfaction throughout the country."

Mr. Clark predicted his re-election in the Ninth district by 4,000 votes.

"I am an avowed candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives," said Clark, and I hope to be elected. Others have announced their candidacy for the speakership, but I expect to win over them. The election is a sure end to the objectionable House rules. Late returns show that I have more than doubled my majority.

Putting Laying Dates on Eggs.

Walla Walla, Wash.—The reputation of the hens of Walla Walla valley is to be saved. If a consumer buys a Walla Walla egg hereafter he is requested to look for the date. He will find it stamped on the outside in neat Roman letters in red ink, and if the date is old and the egg is not fresh it is the buyer's fault.

The dated egg is the result of the deliberations of the Walla Walla Poultry Association.

They have decided to allow no under-sized eggs to be placed on sale, and they will date every case of eggs and each individual egg.

The hen owner will hereafter go gathering eggs with a rubber stamp in one hand and an egg basket in the other.

Having ascended to the hayloft, he will pick up an egg that lies beside the china decouy and quickly stamp the date thereon. If the hen places another egg there on the morrow the date will be changed.

HELPING HUMANITY.

Father and Son Viewed Conditions From Opposite Standpoints. Twenty years ago, says the Chicago Advance, a discouraged young doctor in a land where he was visited once by his old master who came up from a rural district to tell him his boy...

"Well, son," he said, "how are you getting along?"

"I'm not getting along at all," was the disheartened reply. "I'm not doing..."

The old man's countenance fell, but he spoke of courage and patience and perseverance. Later in the day he went with his son to the free dispensary and the old man, dressed in an unadorned cotton suit and white shirt, spent an hour or more every day. The father sat by, a silent but intensely interested spectator, while twenty-five poor unfortunate received help. The doctor's heart was full of pride in his skilled services to the sick, but hardly had the door closed on the last patient when the old man burst forth:

"I thought you told me that you were not doing anything! Why, if I had half twenty-five people in a month as many as you have in one morning I would thank God my life counted for something."

"There isn't any money in it, though," explained the son, somewhat abashedly. "The old man wants all sorts of presents—'thank yous.' What is money in comparison with being of use to your fellow men? Never mind about money. You go right along at this work every day. I'll go back to the fast and giddy easy money sooner or later, but I know I live a lie, and sleep sound every night with the thought that I have helped you to help your fellow men."

SHEREW VICTOR HUGO.

Quiet Way In Which He Battled the Theatrical Managers.

Here are the methods which Dumas the elder and Victor Hugo employed when they had a new play to offer to the theater. Dumas would write to the director of the theater and say:

"My dear Friend—I shall bring you on Monday a play in five acts. I shall need Miss George, Miss Dora, Miss Lucy, Mrs. Potts, and so on."

This extravagance would alarm the director, who would put off the production of the play till better days.

Then Victor Hugo would appear and stay over at the theater manager's house a week. He would agree to everything.

The stock company would play his piece admirably, since all he wanted was a good ensemble; no new decorations would nor any change at all.

In this place he would rest, and as the roles were distributed Hugo would say musingly, "Dieu, how fine Frederick will be in that part!" "That is true." Hotel would murmur, and a few days after the play opened, when Frederick was engaged, Hugo would then remonstrate that this destroyed the ensemble of the cast, and Rancourt, Laferriere and Miss Georges would be engaged. Then Hugo would attack the stage manager and swear that the people had lied of him, aiming an insult to these great artists, if Horst showed reluctance at this, Hugo would threaten to withdraw his piece. And so the game would go on till, little by little, the audience realized that everything he wanted, even the changing of the paper hangings in the stage boxes.

Australia's Sleepy Desert.

The great sandy deserts of North Australia was discovered by Captain Sturt, an Australian explorer, in 1845-6. It is north of the river Darling and is about 300 miles long and 100 broad consisting of sandy dunes and ridges. It is a very dry country, with no creeks, gives the country a sterile appearance. These ridges were probably formed by the joint effect of winds and a gradually retreating sea. According to Captain Sturt, the water was gradually lost by evaporation or carried to some undiscovred ocean. The only vegetation, growing scarcely, is prickly acacias in full bloom, all of stunted growth. Water is scarce except in the creeks which are sheltered, and this is generally brackish. Few travelers care to traverse this inhospitable desert.

A Quick Life.

"A horse of mind recently served as a escort after his gold watch and chain, while crossing a bridge in a thick night made a suspicious looking man suddenly loomed up out of the obscurity."

"Can you tell me the time, gov'nor?" he gruffly inquired.

"You are too late, my dear sir," replied the actor surly. "A gentleman who passed a minute ago stole my watch?" Exchange.

Want a Wife?

Washington, D. C.—"Young woman, fairly wealthy, from foreign country, desires to meet at once some poor young man. Object, matrimony."

Gesticulating with frantic eagerness in the attempt to make her broken German understood, a young woman from across the seas, giving the name of Miss Eugenia Adams, to-day made this bargain offer through a local partner to the chivalrously inclined men of Washington, or to any who may be in financial straits.

"You see, it is this way," she said, mixing broken English with excellent German, "my old uncle is very eccentric. He lives in the Fatherland, where all my people are. He has named me the beneficiary of his will if I am married one week from today. I want the money. I plan to get married in order to obtain it. I will pay any young man $200 to marry me.

"I will be no trouble to him, I will get a divorce from him at once. I never want to see him again. I do not want to remain married. I only want to return to Germany at once with my marriage papers. Could the man make me $200 in any easier way?"

She refuses to disclose her identity or to tell any facts relating to the position of her family in Germany. She is intelligent and refined in appearance, speaks good German in a well modulated voice and wears a smart tailor suit in gray cloth.

Alfalfa for Horses.

One of the foremost horse breeders in America, who constantly maintains upwards of one hundred head of various ages, writes this: "In my experience of twenty-five years in pasturing horses on alfalfa, results have convinced me that it produces more bone, muscle and blood in horses in less time than any other pasture with which I am acquainted. But I believe it profitable in raising the best horses to use also a moderate grain ration, to stimulate rapid growth and early development; my horses, however, have shown no ill effect from pasturing on alfalfa without grain, or other feed, and I have found much proficiency, maturing animals equal for service to any reared otherwise. I have raised three-year-olds grown on alfalfa and a light grain ration to exceed a ton in weight, carrying all the good qualities of the breed to which they belonged. Further, I find using alfalfa as a horse pasture a much more economical method of raising horses than any other."

—Coburn's "The Book of Alfalfa."

Much Talked of Man.

No former Kentuckian has been talked of more in the last few days than R. A. Long, of Kansas City, Mo., who has given $30,000 to Transylvania University, of Lexington. Especially has his boyhood friends around Shelbyville been telling stories about his youthful days spent in Shelby county, where he was born fifty years ago.

This successful man was educated in the common country schools of Kentucky and worked on a farm until he was 17 years of age, when he took employment in a store. This did not prove to his liking, and he went back to the plow. At the end of five years he heard the call of the West, and in a short time thereafter he started a small retail lumber yard at Columbus, Kans.

Working early and late and re-investing the profits of his business, Mr. Long has steadily risen, until to-day he controls ten large lumber companies, three standard-gauge railroads and numerous other business enterprises, the whole representing an aggregate investment of approximately $28,000,000.

Mr. Long is president and principal stockholder of the R. A. Long Real Estate & Investment Company, which owns the R. A. Long building, the first steel skeleton office building of consequence in Kansas City and one of the finest structures in the United States. He is also a director in the Kansas Natural Gas Company, which supplies gas from the Kansas and Oklahoma fields to numerous cities and towns in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma. He was a member and speaker of the Conservation Congress called at the White House by former President Roosevelt. He is well liked by all his employees, for he asks nothing of them that he is not willing to do himself. He is nearly always the first at his desk in the morning and frequently the last to leave at night.

His business interests have two rivals—his home and church. He takes more than an active part in affairs of the Christian church, of which he is a member. Mr. Long is national president of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ. In addition he is president of the Christian Publishing Company in St. Louis, which publishes the Christian Evangelist. This large plant he recently sold and presented to the church organization.

The home life of Mr. Long is beautiful and his new residence, when completed, will probably be the most magnificent in Kansas City. On December 16th, Mr. and Mrs. Long will celebrate the thirty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. They have two daughters, Mrs. Ellis wife of Lieut. Hayne Ellis, U. S. N., and Miss Loula Long, the latter being an expert horsewoman, well-known in horse show circle. —Courtesy Journal.

What Becomes of The Pennies.

Although the Philadelphia mint coined 146,000,000 pennies last year, and many other millions in years before, the mystery of where the little coppers go still is unsolved, and Director of the mint George E. Roberts estimates the big plant will make another 100,000,000 this year.

Pennies, more than any other sort of coin, disappear from circulation mysteriously. The government does not mind coining them, for it yields a fine profit. A pound of copper, costing now about 13 cents, will make one dollar in pennies.

Saves an Iowa Man's Life.

The very grave seemed to yawn before Robert Madson, of West Burlington, Iowa, when after seven weeks in the hospital, four of the best physicians gave him up. Then was shown the marvelous curative power of electric. Bitter, for, after eight months of frightful suffering from liver trouble and yellitis, dogs grew mad and that man became afflicted with burning fevers, hysterics and frenzies.

At Argon a farrier was held during the dog days against erysipelas, from Greek words signifying "dulling dogs," when it was the custom to kill every canine creature that was met with.

NO WONDER.

The ancients thought the world was flat; but we find it is square to day. If we were living in their day, just think what a difference there would be to give to comfort the men, no pipes to smoke and no cigars. No tobacco would be served at handsome bars.

No bridge plays no piano tea, no violin solos, no piano fests, no women's monastic picture hats, no gowns that button up the back, no end seat bogs with manners No monkeying with the price of food, no fire hills, no cold storage engs., no bumbo steerers and no yesa, no trolley cars with clang and bang. No Teddy bear, no anti-slavery, no anti-war, no wonder that the world was flat?

AEDUL HAMID'S 746 WIVES WORRY MAKING TURKS.

Pensioned Because They Can't Remarry Among Moslems.

Adult Hamid's wives continue to be a source of perplexity to the Turkish government. Their number was estimated not to exceed 200, including female slaves of all ranks, but the ministry of finance found itself confronted by claims from 746 women who demanded payment of extra compensation to the value of $600,000.

The government refused to pay this sum, but proposed that the chamber should sanction an arrangement by which the women of the harem for a period of years should receive monthly payments of 100 francs each. The sum is $21.65, which is a pittance in frenzied Turkey, a pretty meager substance. The Turkish deputies, however, still thought the ministry overgenerous.

Some of the Extreme Left shouted, "What don't you think the women deserve?" The finance minister retorted that the women were lone and homeless widows and, according to Turkish custom, could not expect to attract husbands among the faithful. Other deputies suggested that as the women came mostly from Asia Minor or Armenia they should be sent back to their native provinces to be for locality.

Here the members for the provinces concerned jumped up and pointed out indignantly that the families of these women had lost their homes and by selling them by selling them to Elidiz kiosk and that the local authorities could not now be expected to provide for their maintenance. Other deputies again firmly refused to do anything at all in regard to the women, pointing out that as long as wives and mothers of Ottoman soldiers who had died for their country were living in dire poverty.

Finally a small majority was found for the government's project, and so the women of the harem may look forward to receiving their little pension at all events until 1920.

REPORTERS REWRITE BIBLE?

Clayman Thinks Newspaper Handling Would Enhance Interest.

This novel combination in the pulpit of a newspaper man's training with the newspaperman's desire to make the date idea of the Rev. Mr. Jordan, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Jerseyville, Ill. Recently he visited a newspaper office there to see how a daily is got out.

"The bright and breezy news in which we are interested is the kind that makes men read the story through with interest from start to finish," commented Mr. Jordan. "I have often thought that if ministers in their sermon writing would try to adopt newspaper methods in their pulpits, they would make more impression upon their congregations and attract more to the service."

"I certain events related in the pulpit had been reported by the newspaper reporter to me today, how eagerly would we read them. I believe many persons now repelled by the style of the King James version would read such an account, if it existed with the keenest interest and pleasure."

ANCIENTS FEARED DOG DAYS.

Sacred Canines to Sirius to Ward Off Sutry Dangers.

In ancient times it was customary at the beginning of "dog days" to sacrifice a dog to appease the wrath of Sirius, the dog star, so soon as the star became visible to the naked eye.

Sirius was supposed to cause the hot, sultry weather usually attendant on its appearance and the ancient Greeks believed that the dog star was the cause of erysipelas.

Catharines are too strong and isn't too strong, but the child returns twice to the same taste. Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's children's medicine? It is a good tonic that families have been using for years. It is mild, pleasant-tasting and promptly effective. The child returns twice to the same taste, but there is nothing to take it.

After all, if you have not yet used it, Dr. Caldwell would like to send you a sample.

At Argon a farrier was held during the dog days against erysipelas, from Greek words signifying "dulling dogs," when it was the custom to kill every canine creature that was met with.

CHAS. S. HARRIS EDITOR.

Democratic newspaper devoted to the interests of the City of Columbia and the people of Adair and adjacent counties.

Entered at the Columbia Post-office as second class mail matter.

WED. NOV. 16, 1910.

It is not our purpose to boast of Democratic supremacy in the last election and we have never been inclined to deepen wounds inflicted by defeat, but in justice to the opinion we hold and the principles and policies advocated by the Democratic party, we feel that a few words along the line of recount and occurrence will be in good taste with all who read the News. That a great majority of the people have pinned their faith and political fortunes to the selected representatives of Democratic policies, is now an assured fact, both in State and the lower House of Congress and in so doing strengthened the party in its national influence by the addition of several Senators. Such victories, such defeats are not the products of trifling errors committed by one party, nor the great achievements of the other. They spring not from suspicion of evil and unjust tendencies of the one to the glittering promises and possibilities of the other, but they come from a great wave of unrest over broken promises in national legislation and the apparent injustice done the great body of people both in State and Nation. The Republican party agreed to revise the tariff in the interest of the people. It agreed to spend their money in an economical way. It promised to stay the hand of incorporated greed, but in every instance it failed to keep its promise. Naturally endurance, under such circumstances, would cease to be a virtue and the only reasonable thing to do was—call on the opposite party to steer the ship of State. Maine, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and many more States, ordinarily Republican went Democratic and is evidence of wide-spread dissatisfaction in the Republican party, while Tennessee was the only spot of Democratic revolt. With calm, wise and just administrations the Democracy will be a power two years hence and need not fear the results. Parties like men, can not live forever and when bauldly wounded can not regain full vigor in haste. With feuds within and war without no political organization can successfully battle. Teddy, "beat to a frazzle," gave notice beforehand that his fight would be carried steadily on but since the smoke cleared away he has not said a word indicating which or what, as it were.

As to the cause of the great political landslide, of last week, various opinions are expressed but the most prevailing is that it was due to the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. Whether this be correct or not we do not know, but one thing is certain which is known by all and that is the people wanted a change—a new deal, a turning in the affairs of state.

The long contention of the Democrats that the tariff is a tax paid by the people, that a protective tariff is as unnecessary as it is unjust has passed its full and true meaning into the minds of the great mass of people and the verdict has been rendered.

The Mountain Echo, a strong Republican paper, published at London, advocates the unseating of Caleb Powers. Congress is the sole judge of its members and just what may happen can not be told, but we do not favor such a move. While we believe his party has made a bad mistake yet, so far as we know, no allegations of fraud are made against his election and we hope that he will not be disturbed, but be permitted to draw his salary and to occupy a seat facing a body of intelligent gentlemen—they will be there and there for business.

President Taft sailed last week from Charleston, S. C., on the cruiser Tennessee for the Isthmus of Panama.

Uncle Jo Cannon goes back to Congress, but he will not wear the gavel. Champ Clark will succeed him as Speaker of the House.

Fifty cholera suspects are under observation in Pittsburgh. The people under surveillance arrived in the city from New York after being dismissed from quarantining there.

Teddy—the lion hunter, trust buster, dictator and father of the "new nashawialism" is now hid from the world by the shade of Sangamou Hill, doubtlessly pondering over cause and effect and "My policies."

In defending his home from Mexican rioters, Carlos E. Carothers, a real estate man of Guadalajara, late Friday night shot into the mob that attempted to wreck his house killing a policeman. Another American turned the mob back with a loaded shotgun.

It is reported in Washington that the Japanese Government is seeking to raise funds in the United States for building Japan's greater navy. It is said this move disproves rumors that the "open door" of the Far East was to be closed to America.

The following sensible editorial is from the Harrodsburg Democrat: The sweeping Democratic victories throughout the country impose heavy obligations upon the Democratic party, obligations which it is undoubtedly willing to assume, but which it must meet bravely and discharge faithfully if it would prove itself worthy of the confidence of the people. The Democratic party has always claimed to be the friend and champion of the common people—the masses as against the classes. Not fanaticism but horse sense must dominate party councils. Legislation must not be for sections or classes, but for the whole county and all the people.

Upon the result of the official count in Tennessee, which began Monday, probably depends the filing of a contest to prevent the seating of Capt. B. W. Hooper, Republican-Fusion Governor-elect. On the face of the unofficial returns Hooper has a plurality of about 13,000 over United States Senator Robert L. Taylor, Administration Democrat. The regular Democrats who claim to control the Legislature, it is said, plan to contest the election and throw out, if possible, the entire First congressional district because of alleged irregularities in the ballots. This would wipe out Hooper's majority. We would like to see the State of Tennessee continue in the hands of the Democrats, but we do not want to read of any act that has the least smack of fraud.

ELECTION RETURNS.

Democratic control of the next National House of Representatives by a working majority of 29 is assured. It stands as follows:

Democrats elected	225
Republicans	164
Socialist	1
Districts missing or in doubt	1

Total	391
Majority of House	196
Gain by Democrats	53
Gain by Republicans	5
Net gain for Democrats	48

In order to secure control of the House it was necessary for the Democrats to secure twenty-four new members. With a net increase of fifty-three they appear to have gained 29 members in excess of the number necessary to control. At the same time the Republican strength has been reduced by the election of a Socialist in Wisconsin district, normally Republican.

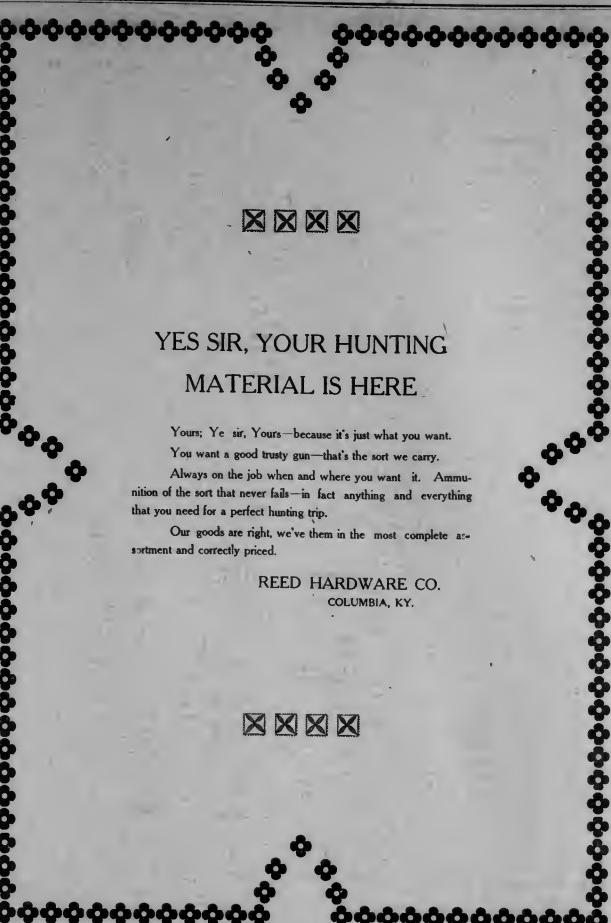

The greatest gain in any one State was New York, where the present delegation of twelve Democrats was increased by ten, making the division as to New York in the next House twenty-two Democrats, fifteen Republicans.

The next largest increase was in Illinois, where the Democrats on the face of the returns made six gains. In Pennsylvania the Democratic gains were five, New Jersey five, Ohio four, North Carolina two, West Virginia two, Missouri two, Maryland two, Maine two, previously elected and one each in Connecticut, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Oklahoma and Rhode Island.

The Republican gains were one each in Iowa, Massachusetts, Missouri, New York and Pennsylvania.

Victor Berger, elected from the Milwaukee district, is the first Socialist to hold a seat in the congress of the United States.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

The vigorous growth and progress of the country as reflected by the records of population and harvests and the general conditions of international peace are things for which thanksgiving is especially due for the year 1910, according to the annual Thanksgiving day proclamation issued by President Taft. The proclamation is as follows:

This year of 1910 is drawing to a close. The records of population and harvests, which are the index of progress, show vigorous national growth and the health and prosperous well-being of our communities throughout this land and in our possessions beyond the ocean. These blessings have not descended upon us in restricted measure, but overflow and abound. They are the blessings and bounty of God.

We continue to be at peace with the rest of the world. In all essential matters our relations with other peoples are harmonious, with an ever-growing depth of friendliness and depth of recognition of mutual dependence. It is especially to be noted that during the past year great progress has been achieved in the cause of arbitration and peaceful settlement of international disputes.

Now, therefore, I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the wise custom of the civil magistrate since the first settlements in this land and with the rule established from the foundation of this Government, do appoint Thursday, November 24, 1910, as a day of national Thanksgiving and prayer, enjoining the people upon that day to meet in their churches for the praise of Almighty God and to return heartfelt thanks to Him for all His goodness and long kindness.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this fifth day of November, in the year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and ten and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-fifth.

William Howard Taft,
By the President.

The practice of writing on newspapers and packages, imparting some information to relatives or friends on packages and parcels mailed them, has been so common with thousands and ignorant people that the Post Office department, at the close of 1909, has issued a circular to the postal department, and henceforth offenders will have to stand arrest and trial. News papers can do the general public good by calling attention to the last governmental action on the matter.

Mr. Finis Rosenbaum, of this place, had a ear of corn, which grew in his garden, on exhibition at Thursday that weighed a pound and fourteen ounces and contained 973 grains. The land is very thin where it grew, hence there is no telling how large it would have been had Mr. Rosenbaum fertilized his ground.

Mr. Dudley Thomas, who lives in the Milltown country, will remove to near Campbellsville the last of this month.

Wakenda, Mo.

Dear Editor:

If you will allow me a space in your paper, I will try and write a letter about Carroll county, especially near Wakenda. It is the finest fall we have had for several years, wheat is the finest that has been seen in Carroll Co., for many years. Some of it has already covered the ground, there is a large acreage sown.

We are needing rain at the present time, as we have not had any since about the middle of September, and everything indicates that we will not get any rain soon. The last few days has been chilly, snowed some on the 27th of Oct. Our corn crop is good considering the season. Some of it was planted very late on account of such rain. Think that is has all matured as the frost was very late. Corn husking has the day. Stock of all kinds such as horses, cattle, and hogs, mules bring good prices, especially yearlings. When Mr. S. B. Mohlier, sold a pair of yearling mules last week for $500, and then received $5 to make the trade, how is that for yearling mules by the side of Mr. R. Phelps, of Russell county, that he received $3,50 for a pair.

Our fruit crop was a failure in Carroll county, this year. The health of this community is good at present except a few, Mrs. Bob St. Clair, is very low at present. She is a native of Kentucky, near Campbellsville, her father being Bud Johns.

Dear Editor, will close hoping this will miss the waste basket. If it does try again as this is the first experience writing to a paper.

Mark Twain's Futile Chase After a Tallyho Coach.

MISSED A BIG CELEBRATION.

The Way the Famous Humorist In Company With W. D. Howells Did Not Attend the Centennial of the Battle of the Minutemen at Concord

In his reminiscences of Mark Twain in Harper's Magazine W. D. Howells tells amusingly of the time when he and Mr. Clemens missed the anniversary of the battle of Concord:

"Mark Twain came on to Cambridge in April 1875, to go with me to the centennial ceremonies at Concord to celebrate the battle of Concord, with the British troops a hundred years before. We both had special invitations, including passage from Boston, but I said why bother to go to Boston when we could just as well take the train for Concord at the Cambridge station? And, finally, I agreed that it would be absurd, so we breakfasted deliberately and then walked to the station, reasoning of many things as usual.

"When the train stopped we found it backed up to the rear, and so were forced to walk across the platform of the cars. To our startled eyes they seemed to project from the windows, and unless memory betrays me they lie strewn upon the roofs like brakemen slain in the heat of combat. We were a few minutes late for the departure of the train, so we stepped into a porter's cabin and began exploring North Cambridge for some means of transportation overland to Concord, for we were that far on the road by which the British went and came on the day of the battle. The porter, who was supposed to receive us, some with compassion, some with derision, but in either mood convinced us that we could not have hired a cat to attempt our conveyance, much less a horse or vehicle of any description.

"It was a raw, windy day, very unlike the exceptionally hot April day when the routed redcoats, pursued by the Colonials, fled panting back to Boston with their tongues hanging out and dogs barking like mad, and the comfort in the view of their disfigurement. We could almost envy them, for they had at least got to Concord. A swift procession of coaches, carriages and buggies, all going to Concord, passed us, including, however, no one of the newlyweds, the nearly cold mind of North Cambridge. We began to wonder if we might not stop one of them and hire it to take us.

"I felt keenly the shame of defeat and the mortification of being for once failing, and when a gay party of students came toward us on the top of a tallyho, luxuriantly empty inside, we felt that our chance had come and our last chance. He said that if I would stop them and tell them who I was they would give us passage. I suggested that if with his far faster renown he would appear them our success would be assured.

"While we stood, lost in this 'context of civilization,' the coach passed us, with gay notes blown from the horns of the students, and then Clemens started in pursuit, encouraged with shouts from the merry party, who could not imagine who was trying to catch them down a tall, airy, prancing tallyho. An unequal match could end only in one way, and I am glad I cannot recall what he said when he became aware of me. Since then I have often wondered at the grief which would have possessed those young hearts if they could have known that they might have had the company of Mark Twain to Concord that day and did not.

"We huddled in the bitter wind awhile longer and finally, when the sun had set, made our way home. We wished to pass as much time as possible in order to give probability to the deceit we intended to practice, for we could not bear to own ourselves baited in our boasted wisdom, so agreed to wait until we had been to Concord and got back. Even after coming home to my house we felt that our statement would be wanting in verisimilitude without further delay, and we crept quietly into my library and made up a soaring fire and lay down to sleep, and waited out the heat of it before we regained our courage for the underaking. With all these precautions we failed, for when our statement was impartially proposed, the victim was instantly prodded with a sharp stick, and was with it on our hands instant. I think the humor of this situation was finally a greater pleasure to Clemens than an actual visit to Concord would have been. Only a few weeks before his death he laughed our defeat over with one of my family in Bermuda and excused in our prompt detection."

There is not one farming community in a hundred where the inhabitants do not care for the welfare of the green field and water they need, but should be provided with a dust bath in a good sized box. Not very much in the way of municipal progress can be claimed by any community which allows aristocrat or plebian cars to swarm its streets and alleys and constitute an obstruction to health, peace and quiet of its inhabitants.

The levying of a five dollar dog tax is usually the first tangible sign that any town is awaking from its long sleep.

A headland of grass at the ends and sides of a tilted field usually much indicates a good deal of trouble. This might be raised where the horses turn, is usually a poor stand and scraggly. If the headland is in some good grass a good bunch of hay may be secured, the stripes are nearer in appearance, and usually this neatness will extend to the roadside just over the fence.

An interesting feature of the Spokane apple show, which is to be held the latter part of November, will be a display of apples on which there have been photographic portraits and scenes. These will afford a series of best specimens. The skin of the apples is especially sensitive to light, and the results obtained are said to be more satisfactory than with photographic prints.

All too often the fellow who wallows around in the barnyard mire in wet weather is the same fellow who has a straw stack or two rotting in his fields. It's odd that such a fellow doesn't see the wisdom of scattering the straw in the barn yard and feed the straw to the rid of manure and at the same time manufactured a lot of valuable fertilizer, which the average farm is mighty in need of.

Those who are suggesting seriously that our children and grandchildren should be sent abroad elsewhere to finish their bodies have not even the shadow of the fact that at present one acre out of six is under tillage in the United States and that this acre is profiting but half a normal crop of wheat, one-third of a normal crop of corn, cotton less than a half crop and potatoes but one-half.

The dry spell which has prevailed in many of the north central states, greatly reducing the efficiency of the pastures, is not bearing so heavily upon the folks who have silos and who are raising a good deal of the meat animals with a good ration of silage secured last fall. Thousands of other stock feeders and dairymen ought to have this economical safeguard against periods of drought. It would be simply a matter of foresight and good management.

Those Who Drank are all Dead.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, recently said to a railroad man:

"Twenty-five years ago I knew every man, woman and child in Peekskill, and it has been a great study with me to take boys who started in every grade of life with myself to see what has become of them. I was up to Peekskill last fall and began to count them over, and it was an instructive exhibit.

"Some of them became clerks, merchants, manufacturers, lawyers and doctors. It is remarkable that every one of them who drank is dead—not one living of any age. Barring a few who were taken off by sickness, every one has proved a wreck and ruined his family from rum, and no other cause.

"Of those who are church going people, who are steady, industrious and hard-working men, who were frugal and thrifty every single one of them, with but exceptions owns the house in which he lives and has something laid up, the interest on which, with his home, would carry him through many a rainy day. When a man becomes debased with drink he doesn't care—all his inner feelings are crowded out.

Stabs Noses.

Mr. A. J. Lovejoy sounds this alarm in the Berkshire camp:

I have been called, for many years, a crank on good heads, but I never had ill will stand one minute for an extremely pug-nosed, broken-jawed Berkshire.

So much has been said about good heads that many breeders who do not yet understand what a good head means have gone to the other extreme and will buy nothing that has not a pug nose, even such as are bred on our Boston pug dogs or bulls dogs.

My experience is that a hog with this kind of a nose is not as thrifty or as growthy as any of the other pigs in the herd that have reasonably good heads, and I, for one, want to "sound the alarm" against extremely pug nose strains of Berkshires. However, do not misunderstand me, I stand for a good head and would not, for a minute, use a boar that would produce animals with long, straight noses or narrow between the eyes. A good head is described in our standard of excellence as wide, broad between the eyes and ears and nicely dished face. Now, nicely dished does not mean a pug nose with the lower jaw longer than the upper; one that snuffles or snuffles in the least. It is a head that is in balance with the rest of the animal and in proportion in every way. Without this good head, broad and nicely dished. I would not want a Berkshire and yet, I would not want the other extreme.

I see, as I go to the fairs in the last few years, that the tendency is to bring everything to a fair that has a pug nose. I believe that the breeders should wake up to this matter and still stand only for good heads, but get just what a good head is in their minds, rather than purchase anything that has no nose. Let us be a little conservative along this line and not ruin one of the greatest hogs in the world by catering to one cranky notion.

We are receiving new stock of underwear, hose, gloves, mufflers, shirts, gowns, &c., this week.

A good rule for ever farmer is the two-foot rule.

With horses as with married folks, it is desirable that when hitched they stay hitched.

Our friends are like our clothes unless they wear well we get little satisfaction out of them.

If a team of horses pull together they are sure to accomplish something; and the same is true of men.

We put hobbles on a horse to keep him at home but the hobble skirt is not intended for any such purpose.

Too often instead of being sorry for our misdeeds we are merely ashamed that we have been found out.

Did you ever stop to wonder what a lot of mischief you might get into if you didn't have to work so hard for a living.

Farmers believe so thoroughly in the gospel of work that they even work their butter; and, like all else, it is the better for being worked.

A writer complains of the tendency of sex to run out, and sometimes wives are heard complaining of a like tendency on the part of their husbands.

Not every man who is "charming" and a "good fellow" abroad is a model husband at home. Many a holt tipping gallant compels his wife to split the kindling.

One of the greatest accomplishments is to be a good listener. By letting the other man do all the talking we acquire a reputation for wisdom far above that we may gain in any other way.

Hate and Heyburn.

Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, was concluding afierly speech regarding the tariff. Senator Cummins, of Iowa, interjected a remark calculated to provoke a reply from Heyburn.

"Oh," said Senator Hale, of Maine, to Cummins in a tone audible throughout the senate chamber, "don't stir him up again."

"I object to the remarks of the Senator from Maine!" thundered Heyburn very red of face. "He means to be insolent!"

"I do," agreed Hale smiling in the same ardible tone, "I certainly do."—Popular Magazine.

The teacher in the town or country school is very highly esteemed and will approach a more or less loyally girls and青年 realize kinship and courtesy on their part. The according of this kind of treatment is a great help to the teacher and reacts wholly on the pupils who practice it.

It is a money to the played out and decrepit old family horse to end its miseries with a rifle ball rather than to sell it for $4.00 to some heartless brute who will exact the last pittance of toll from it and then kill it to boot. We believe that the horse will get to heaven who does a thing of this kind, no matter how long he has been an older or deacon in the church.

The plow is probably the oldest agricultural implement. The first plow used a wooden share in the days of the patriarchs, namely a crooked stick with a tough sharpened point, which just scratched the ground. It is a long step from this to the four horse gang plow which will turn over three or four acres per day and the steam or gasolene traction outfit which will turn over thirty acres.

A pretty good way of ascertaining whether the price asked for a given piece of land is exorbitant or not is to find out whether the value of the annual product of the soil represents a reasonable amount in relation to the nation after expenses, taxes, etc., have been deducted. Viewed on this basis, houses of supposed land bargains now offered for sale can only be viewed as largely speculative propositions.

Folks who live in town and have never had mail delivered to them by the rural carrier have little idea with how much expectancy the daily visits of the carrier are awaited. It may be the daily paper which keeps the community informed of the latest news from the outside world or the regular letter from the folks far or near. The writer has received his mail by carrier the past few months and realizes more fully what the service must mean to all the folks on the 40,000 odd routes over the country.

The lemon growers of California feel pretty good over the decision of the interstate commerce commission in the lemon rate case. Shortly after the Payne tariff bill was passed, increased the duty on imported lemons, the transcontinental lines could advanced their freight rate on lemons to the point where it nicely absorbed the advance which would have come to the grower as a result of the increased tariff. The growers appealed, and as a result the rate will be put back where it was—$1 per 100 pounds.

The area over which alfalfa, the most valuable of all the legumes, is being grown is slowly but surely increasing, and the highest quality is produced gradually northward. This seems to be due to a better understanding of the conditions necessary and favorable to the growth of the plant, including treatment of the soil with lime, inoculation with the right bacteria, and the proper timing of the seed in the proper soil before the seed is sown. It is thought that the area of successful growing of the plant will be still further increased when some of the hardy varieties brought from Siberia have been propagated so that seed may be had for general use.

One hundred and sixty-five trees in one of the handsomest and best kept orchards in the locality in which the writer lives came to an untimely end during the winter of 1902-03, almost all of which were termed "sun scald." This is a sun or fermented condition of the sap of apple trees resulting from a rapid flow of sap induced by bright warm days in the spring followed by cold frosty nights. The trunks prior to the changeable and trying temperatures of winter and spring, or rather effectively by the side of the side of the trunk exposed to the sun with this board, veneer corners or other wrappers. Especially should trees which have already suffered in this way be protected from the intense rays of the sun during the summer months, and the author suggests an aluminous shield closely allied to it, not the same as sun scald, damage by the latter being on a somewhat less scale than a sun sap condition, which rules the entire tree.

"There were no paved streets in the Chicago of those days, and one morning after a rainfall, when the roads were unusually filthy, Judge Butterfield and Phelps met at a crossing."

"Good morning, Pallas," said the Judge as he tiptoed through the black mud. "You haven't swept your office this morning!"

ADMIRAL INVENTS CRAFT FOR LAND AND SEA USE

Howells of Toledo Fame Predicts Many Uses For It.

Experiments are being made at Bath, Me., with the Amphib II, a unique craft built for Rear Admiral John A. Howells, U. S. N., retired, which is designed for use on land as well as sea.

Rear Admiral Howells, who was the inventor of the Howells torpedo, experimented with a similar craft a year ago, but the results were not just as he wanted, so this second craft, considerably larger, has been built, and there is great interest manifested in her trials.

The craft measures twenty feet long and ten feet beam; while she has a tall ten feet in length. She is equipped with a single cylinder ten horse-power engine, which will send her along. It is hoped, at the rate of seven miles an hour in the water or twelve miles on land. Mammoth thirty-inch wheels are situated forward of the middle of the craft, and another in the tail, so the craft can steer either on land or on water.

Buckets are attached to the forward wheels for use in the water, while there is also a small propeller, which is mounted on the port side, for auxiliary service in the water. There is also a small carburetor in the tail which acts as a rudder for steering the craft either on land or on water.

Admiral Howells will take his craft to the month of the Kennebec river, where she will be tried upon the sands of Popham beach, and she will also be given trials at Old Orchard, and if she works satisfactorily she will be taken to Long Beach, N. Y.

Mr. Howells believes that such a boat has many uses. It could be used as a surfboat at life saving stations, while it could also be used by sportsmen running along the coast, who could sail on the water or go upon the beaches at will.

WORLD COINAGE PLANNED.

Leipzig Savant to Explain Trade Expansion Ideas in Berlin.

Professor Oswald, one of Germany's distinguished savants, who lectured at Columbia and Harvard universities in 1903, has originated a novel project for a universal world coinage.

He has been invited by the Merchants Manufacturers Association of Berlin to make a full exposition of his ideas before that organization some time in September or October. The association will ask leading bankers and exporters to attend the meeting and join in the discussion as to the practicality of Professor Oswald's proposals.

Professor Oswald's general idea is that the commerce and intercommunication of nations would be immensely facilitated and simplified by the adoption of a money system and coinage common to the whole civilized world.

Professor Oswald holds honorary degrees from the leading universities of the world.

WAR ON HAT SALUTES.

Darmstadt Society Says It's French and Un-American.

"Why raise your hat?" is the motto of the Society for the Promotion of German Modes of Greeting, whose headquarters are at Darmstadt. It is a wasteful habit, the society argues, because it costs the nation nothing. It is unnatural to bow to another, and it is apt to bring on colds. And, worst of all, it is unpatriotic, for the custom was adopted from the French, the first nation in Europe to bare the head as a form of politeness.

The true mode of greeting for Germans, the society says, is military saluting, which is of purely Prussian origin, having originated among the officers of the Prussian grenadiers.

The society has gained many adherents, and are now accustomed to see elderly civilians stand rigidly at attention and bring the head smartly to the forehead when they meet acquaintances in the street.

China Likes Cheap Watches. Cheap, showy, silver cased watches are not the American dollar variety are the favorites in China. Swiss watches seem to lead.

Newspaper Space.

Everyone in a newspaper costs the publisher something. If it is to benefit some individual, he may fairly expect to pay something. You do not go into a grocery and ask the proprietor to hand you out ten pounds of sugar for nothing, even though the grocer may be a personal friend and even though the life might not be a large one.

If the beneficiary of advertising does not pay for it, the proprietor has to settle the bill. Nevertheless, many people cannot seem to learn that a newspaper pays its expenses by renting space, and that it is just as much entitled to collect rent for every day that space is occupied as the landlord is for the house he rents to a tenant.

Most newspapers always treat religious and philanthropic enterprises liberally, yet in spite of this many of these enterprises expect the newspapers to give them space, rent free, while they carry their job printing to some other shop. The place for them to look for support is the place they patronize.

Religious organizations, we are sorry to say, are the worst offenders in this line that we have to deal with. We believe that there are just as good Christians, and just as generous, as the average merchant on the street. We, therefore, cannot understand why we are repeatedly besought to give away our goods by people who would never think of begging cream from the milkman or coffee from the grocer.—Glasgow Times.

Poison Law.

The State Board of Pharmacy won a victory in the Court of Appeals when the case of Katzman vs Commonwealth from Jefferson was affirmed. The effect of the decision is that a druggist cannot sell morphine or other poisons to anyone except upon the prescription of a physician.

Katzman was a druggist and he was indicted upon information furnished the Commonwealth through the State Board of Pharmacy for selling morphine to a man without the written prescription of a physician and without satisfying himself that the poison was to be used for legitimate purposes and with the knowledge that it was intended for smoking purposes or habitual use. Attorney for Katzman contended that the words "retail" and "legitimate purposes" as used in sec. 2303 of the Kentucky Statutes, were too indefinite and uncertain, and therefore the statute is invalid. The court held in an exhaustive opinion by Judge Carroll that the language of the statute is sufficiently specific and upholds the fine imposed on Katzman. This a test case and one that all the better class of druggist have been urging for a long time.

High Bridge.

Early in 1911, the new High Bridge which is to span the Kentucky river on the Queen & Crescent Route will have been completed. It will be the highest bridge spanning a navigable stream on the American continent and is to be the most massive structure of its length and breadth known to the civilized world and will have a sustaining capacity of 7,200 tons. In the erection to this wonderful span, more than two million two hundred thousand rivets and fourteen million pounds of tested steel are required. Almost two years were spent in manufacturing the great steel sections that are being combined to produce this marvelous product of American skill and genius. The old bridge which has attracted eight seers of every nation is constructed of iron in weight one-fourth as massive as the steel of which the new bridge is being made. On account of the superior material of the new structure it will have about five times the sustaining power of the old one. From the top of the rails of the new bridge to the water in the river below, the distance is 315 feet. It will require 140,000 of steel rails and 2,000 ties to build the double track across the bridge which is 1,223 feet in length. Thousands of people are now being attracted to the scene to witness the building of a structure the like of which exists nowhere else on the whole American continent and it is fitting that this marvelous handiwork of man should have as its setting a landscape that is unrivaled in natural beauty and charm.

Picturesque Kentucky river, with its towering cliffs, lifting themselves more than three hundred feet above the water line, are in full view from the train while passing over the bridge. At this point the winding stream has been denominated by tourists of all countries as the Switzerland of the Western Hemisphere. The wonderful height and powerful strength of the connecting link of steel may be attained elsewhere, but the amazing picture which nature has painted for the background can never be approached in the category of human achievements.

Good Roads.

The good roads committee, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the headquarters of the Retail Merchants' Association in the Urban building, began work on important bills providing for good roads, which bills are to be submitted to the next General Assembly. The conference is the result of action taken at a meeting of the Kentucky Good Roads Association, at the fair grounds here. Those who are attending the meeting likely will be engaged in drafting the good roads bills for two or three days.

Julius V. Beckman, who has taken an active part in the movement for good roads in Kentucky for several years, said that the contents of the bills to be drafted by the committee will not be made known until the bills are submitted for approval at the Good Roads Congress, to be held here December 8.

The members of the committee who are in the city will exercise the utmost care in drafting the bills. Those who are working on them are Harry A. Sommers, chairman, Elizabethtown, George L. Pickett, Shelbyville, Joseph F. Bosworth, Middlesboro, and Judge James P. Gregory, Louisville.—Saturday's Courier-Journal.

Why he Advertisises.

A member of one of Middletown's most successful business houses explains why they advertise and why they prefer the newspapers for that purpose as follows:

"We advertise in the newspapers because we are not ashamed of our goods or our work and to let the people know about our firm, our store and our stock, because we cater to the intelligent class, and they read the newspapers, and we believe in increasing our business, because we can talk to more people through the newspaper at a greater distance in less time and at a more reasonable price than in any other way; because our newspaper advertising brings us greater returns for the least expenditure than any other kind of advertising of that we have done; because when we write an 'ad' we are not too stingy to pay for placing it in the best possible medium or have it inserted so it is attractive; because we know it is seen and read by every member of the family to which the paper goes."

Electric Chair.

The old time barbarous way of inflicting the death penalty will soon be a thing of the past, as the work of installing the death chair at Eddyville penitentiary is going on steadily and will be ready for use in a few weeks. The electrocution law went into effect on June 14th and if a crime is committed after that time for which the death penalty is imposed the condemned man will be electrocuted. There has been a notable change made in the prison at Frankfort. The old penitentiary at that place will soon be converted into a reformatory and this in one of the principal reasons the death chair was located at Eddyville instead of Frankfort as it is hardly probable the death penalty will be inflicted in a reformatory. The Prison Commission will be ready in a few months to begin the transfer of the prisoners. All prisoners over thirty years of age will be taken to Eddyville and all under thirty will go to Frankfort. Also, under this new law, all prisoners, no matter what crime, that meets the requirements as to conduct can be paroled and quite a number are now being granted.

The work on the bank building at this place will begin in a few days.

The coldest weather of the season has been for the past few days.

Dr. S. Simmons is spending a few days at Jamestown this week.

Geo. H. Nell sold J. W. Parson a building lot in our city one day last week.

Mr. Charlie Sparks is on the market for a few good plug mules if they are not too young.

Strong Hill spent several days of last week repairing his saw mills out in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Bell spent one day last week at Greensburg.

The protracted services will begin in our city at the Baptist church the first Sunday in November.

Mr. H. A. Moss, of Greensburg, was in our midst last Tuesday.

Mr. Geo. H. Nell is having some repairing done on his dwelling at this place.

Mr. C. L. Keltner sold Tilden Wheeler a very valuable piece of land last week for two hundred dollars.

Mr. Thos. Cole, of Weed, has been helping our blacksmith for the past week.

Messrs. Jo Lane, Strong Hill; John Campbell, with several other commercial men, were calling on our merchants last week.

Messrs. J. O. Moore and J. W. Keltner spent last Friday in Columbia.

Dr. U. L. Taylor, of Columbia, was in our community last Tuesday.

Mr. Tilden Wheeler, one of our up to date farmers, is nearing completion of a large feed and tobacco barn.

Mr. Oliver Wilson, of Edmonton, attended the funeral of his brother, Mr. J. M. Wilson, of our community, last Sunday.

Mrs. Lena Mell, of Beaver Dam, in company with her mother, Mrs. Grissom, of Columbia, visited her sister, Mrs. Wilmore, in our city a day or so of last week.

Misses Ethel Moore and Virginia Tupman, of our city, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Moss last Friday night.

The election is over and we Democrats are wonderfully pleased with the results of old Adair county and would have been better pleased if the Eleventh Congressional District would have done likewise. We console ourselves by resting assured that everything will come around alright in the course of time.

Rev. Payne, of the M. E. church, is holding a very interesting series of meetings at Antioch church near Sparksville at this time. There have been quite a number of professions and the community at large greatly revived. Rev. Payne is quite a revivalist.

Mr. C. C. Stephens bought last week Mr. John Cabell's farm near Miami in Green county, for the consideration of nine thousand dollars. This is considered one of the best farms in Green county. As we understand it has a number of acres of first-class bottom land and scarcely any poor land. We congratulate Mr. Stephens in being so fortunate in securing this valuable farm at a reasonable price.

Mr. J. H. Pendleton, the well-known stock dealer and farmer, of this section, bought last week several head of cattle from J. A. Diddle at prices ranging from $1 to $2 cents per pound.

At the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Walker near our city gathered quite a number of their relatives on last Thursday afternoon to extend the right hand of friendship and congratulations to their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Walker, on their return from Burkesville where they had been made one in the holy bonds of wedlock.

The evening was delightfully spent and will long be remembered by every one present and especially the nice and good things that had been prepared for the occasion. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walker wish them a long and happy life.

Roy.

Well, the earthquake of Nov. the 8th is over and Roy is still on the map.

People generally are gathering corn, getting wood and preparing for winter.

Mrs. Sallie Holladay is not so well as she was last week. Her condition gradually grows worse.

Mr. W. W. Holladay is no better at this time.

Mr. Grover Holladay, of Greenwood, Ind., is at the bedside of his sick mother.

Mr. L. F. Holladay, of Caster, Oklahoma, arrived this week to be at the bedside of his sick mother, Mrs. Sallie Holladay.

Mr. G. R. Redmon, our merchant, is doing a good business, judging from his activities when there.

Now to our knitting; we read the appendix to the Dirigo letter of last week with much interest, and while it was soaking in, we took our old book down and knocked the dust off, preparatory to reading, while we were doing this, it suddenly occurred to us; that the writer (according to the prophecy of the Dirigo man) together with the Republican party in the Eleventh District were responsible for that "little snow storm," that fell last Friday; also, that the ravages of diphtheria in the Eleventh district was the wrath of a just God poured out upon the Republicans of the district because they nominated Mr. Powers for Congress.

Then he requested us to read so much scripture, all this: Kings, Judges, Samuel and Chronicals, and then some, that the very absurdity of that request, with the above responsibility weighing upon our mortal brain all so suddenly, almost upset us.

Just to think the gentleman would have us read ancient history, covering a little more than 4,000 years was too much for us to comprehend all at once, so we almost swooned, though we are not a woman.

As we began to recover a little we felt kindly sick down about the lower end of our Esophagus, and we betook ourselves to the chimney corner without ceremony. There, with one hand on our stomach and the other on our forehead we did our utmost to emit—but we couldn't.

We stood on our toes, ran our finger down our Esophagus, but all to no purpose.

Then we went in took up the old book and began to read.

We soon found, according to its teachings, that in the latter days many false prophets would arise, then we felt better, for that explained it all, for that little "snow storm" was even worse down in the good old State of Texas than here.

So we decided, that, that insinuation, against us Republicans, was just another stray bomb exploded.

We admit that diphtheria has been prevalent for several weeks, but as it has been in both, the homes of the "Jew" as well as the "Gentile" in this case we believe that it, too, like the little "snow storm" was a result of local causes, rather than a chastisement of the Republicans.

Now we believe that the Lord was merciful to Mr. Powers, or he could never have held on to life through eight years of terrible persecution.

He was locked in a cell and not even permitted to look upon the face of his dead father.

If I could read all that the gentleman has dictated I might change my opinion and take that little "snow storm" all on myself.

We deplore with sadness the last days of Senator Goebel. The man who did that cowardly crime ought to be hanged. We agree there. Here we disagree: You think Powers guilty, I believe him innocent. You think the Lord sent that little "snow storm" as a chastisement on the Yankees of the Eleventh, I don't believe He did. You think the diphtheria was likewise sent, I don't believe it was.

Now Brother, read the good book more, and you will find where you are required to pray for Mr. Powers while he is in office. Are you going to do it? If not, why not? If you are the Christian you would appear to be you must do it.

I found in reading that good book, where it said: "He, that hateth his brother is a murderer in his heart." Do you find it in your book?

Now, we are about to quit; if we have said anything to offend you, we earnestly beg your pardon, for I assure you it was only an error of the head and not of the intention. But if you come again we would like to ask you what the saintly Mr. Bertram meant when he said: "If Powers was elected he would not take his seat."

Now what we have said is from a good humored standpoint, and we trust it will be received likewise. From the initials we know the Dirigo man. We like him, only his political breath smells a little strong to us at times.

Now Brother Campbell bring your family and come and see us, I have a good Democratic wife we will give you plenty of hog and hominy and if it snows a little will try to keep you warm.
